Be a Good Samaritan; consider pastoral care

THE OBSERVATION OF MARTIN LUTHER KING DAY this year had the usual quota of politicians singing the praises of King the man, but really just taking advantage of his day to promote their own political agenda. There was one interview though which caught my attention. I don't remember whether it was Andrew Young or Jesse Jackson or another of King's inner circle who was talking to the PBS commentator. It really doesn't matter because the message was what was important. They were recounting a sermon Dr. King delivered on the parable of the Good Samaritan. In the course of the sermon he talked about what might have gone on in the mind of the priest, The Levite and the Samaritan as they came upon the man who had been robbed, beaten, and left lying, seriously injured, by the side of the Jericho Road. He suggested that both the priest and The Levite might have evaluated the situation in the following manner:

"I don't know whether the robbers are still around. Perhaps they left that man in the middle of the road to lure sympathetic travelers to his aid so they could rob them too. This really isn't a safe place to be. I really should hurry along and get out of danger myself."

He then shifted to the man from Samaria as he came upon the injured man. He too may have seen the obvious danger in remaining there too long in order to help him. Dr. King then went on to suggest that the Samaritan, while he recognized the obvious danger to himself didn't stop reasoning there. Instead he asked: "If I don't help, what will happen to him?" The transaction that passed between the Samaritan and the injured Israelite that day was an instance of one human being delivering pastoral care to another.

Recently, Rev. Pat Eustis challenged the members of the vestry to take an active leadership role in the spiritual life of St. Barnabas by giving prayerful consideration to some area of the Parish's life, and then recruiting three others to join with us and decide what positive contributions we could make. After a great deal of serious consideration I came to the conclusion that I should continue working in the general

Let's fill our classes with children

I HAVE ALWAYS BEEN AN EARLY RISER. I like to get up and get things done before I go to the office. I usually get up around 6 a.m., make myself a cup of tea, sit down in my rocking chair by the sliding glass doors and read my daily office and pray. Then, I have time to do a few chores and get ready to go to work. Now with Charlie, my new companion, (a cockapoo), I get to go outside at 6 a.m. I don't like going out in the snow or rain, but the other morning it was glorious outside. Now with daylight savings time, it is light out. This particular morning the sun was shining, we saw robin redbreasts hopping around, and the daffodils in the yard and at the corner of the church property seemed a riot of color. This morning no one was out, so Charlie ran around gaily, and I started to sing Hymn 8, "Morning has broken." I thanked God that I was alive, that my dog was with me, and that I was here at St. Barnabas working among this wonderful community.

We walked toward the office and classroom building. I remembered, last Sunday, I had gone into the classroom and told the children I had a very difficult question to ask them. All their bright faces looked up at me ready to show me they could answer anything I asked. I said, "Are you ready?" They said, "Yes". So I gave them the question. This Sunday was Good Shepherd Sunday, and I knew they were going to make a sheep mask for Rev. Kate's sermon, so I said, "Okay, what sound does a sheep make?" With great gusto, they said, "Baa!" They then laughed, thinking it was great fun that they knew the answer and could shout loudly at their priest! We have a wonderful group of children that come to Sunday School and to church. They deserve all of our support and love. We have an extraordinarily dedicated group of teachers, who require our support in order to continue to do the ministry they have so faithfully fulfilled for many years.

In the coming months, I ask that you pray and think about the ways in which we can show our love to our children and teachers. Also, think about whether you as a parent, grandparent or single man or woman might be willing to teach in the Sunday school for six months or a year. We want to expand our Sunday School. Currently, we have nursery, preschool, and one grade with grades 1-4. In September, we would like to offer nursery, preschool, grades 1-3, grades 4-6 and grades 7-9. We cannot do this without more help. Our children's faith formation is crucial to their lives now and in the future. Today's world, and the world they will inherit, is extremely complex, with too many options, opportunities, and challenges. How will they make the moral, just and loving decisions they need to make without a strong faith to sustain and guide them?

You will be trained; we promise not to send you into this ministry unprepared. You will have the tools and knowledge to do the work God is calling you to do. If you offer yourself for six months or year, I promise you that each Sunday you will wake up exciting to be here, and you will finish Sunday School with the sense of having truly served God and loved God's special creatures—our children. Please pray for guidance to join the Sunday School.

As Charlie and I continued looking at the school building, I could almost hear the sounds of a 100 children filling the classrooms, playing in the yard on nice mornings, and shouting with joy each time they saw Rev. Kate and I: "Baa!"

We have a wonderful group of children that come to Sunday School and to church. They deserve all of our support and love. We have an extraordinarily dedicated group of teachers, who require our support in order to continue to do the ministry they have so faithfully fulfilled for many years.

From the assistant: The Rev. Katharine E. Stebinger

Welcome the season of left turns

JESUS SAID, "I AM THE WAY, AND THE TRUTH, AND THE LIFE." Jesus is the path on which we travel in our lives as Christians. For many of us, the literal path on which we travel is Route 28. For me, as the season begins around Memorial Day, it becomes increasingly difficult to act nicely to those around me. Overwhelmed by crowds, I am more likely to snap at someone, make a disparaging remark about a visitor to Falmouth, or be generally grumpy, none of which is particularly Christian behavior. And I am inevitably impatient with folks trying to turn left onto the way of our lives, whether that way be Route 28, Sandwich Road or Route 151. Does this sound familiar?

For some of us, tourism is our livelihood, for others, something to be regarded with great regret and suspicion. How often are we genuinely welcoming? Jesus ate with anybody, fed thousands, and talked with most everyone who approached him. When he got overwhelmed, he took himself off to the mountains to pray alone. How often do we take care of ourselves when we are overwhelmed?

People visit Cape Cod in the summer because it is a beautiful place. We live here, whether year-round or in summer, because we love this particular peninsula of land. As the crowds flock this summer, I'm going to try and live the Christian way on Route 28, and I invite you to do the same. Celebrate the fact that we let people turn left. However they got here, they're on the road. When you see the complaining child and the snappish mother in the grocery store, instead of thinking nasty things about parenting, let her go first in the check-out line. Think of the extra five minutes it takes to navigate the Jones Road traffic lights as a short timeout for prayer. Say hello to the person sitting in your pew in church. (They didn't know it was your pew; they're Episcopalians from Montana or Alabama.) And when you absolutely can't stand the crowds anymore, go off by yourself and pray alone. Maybe that solitary prayer must be seized upon by locking the bathroom door, or weeding the garden while hiding in the shrubbery, but be like Jesus and find a way.

The way of our lives is often crowded as May winds into June, and June into July. If your way on Memorial Day weekend must be Route 28, make it the way of Jesus, and let that poor minivan with the out-of-state plates turn left. It'll make their day, and make you feel better.

Education Hour meeting May 18

There will be a parents' meeting for the upcoming Education Hour year, 2008-2009, on May 18 at 11:30 a.m., following the service, in the lower parish hall. Please come and learn about our program for next year. We will talk about the curriculum and opportunities for being involved in your children's learning. This is a very important meeting! Registration will follow on June 1 during coffee hour.

Sunday Soup and Outreach

The Outreach Committee's April 13 soup lunch and presentation on the Mother's Union Feeding Program in Kenya had a wonderful turn out of over 50 people and proved to be very informative, inspiring and tasty.

Thanks to Helen Gordon's technical skills, we enjoyed watching a DVD filmed by parishioners from St. Christopher's, Chatham, on their visit to the Maseno Mission last October. St Christopher's supports the feeding of 500 AIDS orphans each week by the Mother's Union in Maseno. $10 will feed one child a Saturday meal for an entire year. St. Barnabas parishioners bought out our supply of $10 LOVE bowls: thanks also to those who generously contributed when the bowls were gone. We raised $270 toward a deanery challenge to support an additional church in Kenya. (Further donations can be made to St. Barnabas with a memo for Outreach Aid to Kenya.)

The fellowship enjoyed by all was possible because so many wonderful people helped! Four delicious pots of "African" soup were prepared by Margaret Ruta, Cipperly Good, Ann Grainger and Marcia Donovan, who headed up the entire meal. Thank you. Margaret Margolis provided long loaves of bread. Kate Stebinger cooked a millet salad, which is a popular grain in Africa. A delicious assortment of cookies and sweets came from Peggy Jones, Jayne Iafrate and Barbara Stephens, Connie and Bob Jenney, Nancy Young, Bob Butcher and Arlene Vernet. Fruit and cheese were brought by Annie Holden and Al and Jean Engle. And, of course, all was put back into ship shape order by deanery delegates Nancy Young, Peggy Jones, Marcia Donovan and Ellie Shaver.

Wednesday Night education

At this time, I have found that I have too many competing responsibilities. I will continue the Wednesday morning, 10:45 a.m. to noon Bible Study in the small conference room. I will also continue the Sunday Forums, in my office, between the 8 a.m. and 10 a.m. services. However, in May and through the summer, there will not be a Wednesday night program. If you are interested in this program beginning in the fall, please let me know. Rev. Kate and I thank you for all the support we have received for the education programs we offer.

area that I volunteer my time to now: Taking communion to members of St. Barnabas who are unable to attend Eucharistic services, and working as a volunteer driver with the Falmouth Senior Citizens Center providing transportation to people who have no other means of getting to important appointments. Also, I'm very concerned about the lack of transportation for members of St. Barnabas who can't get to church services and special events. There never seems to be enough volunteers to meet the need. When I talked to Pat about this she said it sounded like I was interested in pastoral care. Maybe that's why Dr. King's interpretation of the Good Samaritan parable spoke to me personally? I truly believe that the question "What will happen to them if I don't help" is the instant challenge confronting us all. I also believe that, as in the case of Samaritan, opportunities to help are usually presented in daily situations, right in our path, that we have to step over or around in order to avoid.

If you're interested in being part of a "visioning" team to identify areas of pastoral care, such as transportation, which we could/should be doing better, please contact me via the church office.

If this doesn't interest you and you'd like to become involved in some specific area of pastoral care, such as becoming a lay Eucharistic minister, or lay Eucharistic visitor, please contact either the Rev. Pat Eustis, or the Rev. Kate Stebinger through the church office, (508) 548-3863.

Lagging pledges create 2008 budget shortfall

As parishioners we need to consider our commitment to Saint Barnabas.

Saint Barnabas has made a commitment in faith and resources to the parishioners, the community, the staff and our facilities to provide the resources to support programs and services supporting God's work. This commitment translates into a budget approved by the vestry of $530,230. Sixty percent of our budget provides clergy and lay staff and 17 percent represents the operational and maintenance costs for our extensive campus. The 23 percent of remaining expenses are attributable to our commitment to the diocese assessment, church and Christian education programs as well as office expenses.

Endowments provide 37 percent of our revenue and of that amount $187,500, the Nickerson endowment funds 57 percent or $72,000 of the operation and maintenance budget. The balance of our annual withdrawals of earnings from endowments is established by the finance committee and vestry to protect the principal and allow for inflation growth in each fund.

Loose plate offerings, use of facilities and miscellaneous revenues represent 7 percent of our budget.

Bottom line, the pledge income this year was budgeted at $285,000 or 54 percent of the total expenditure budget. The table below represents a comparison of our 2008 commitment compared to a similar time last year.

Item	Count 03/07/07	Count 04/10/08	Amount 2007	Amount 2008
Both Years Zero	69	71	0	0

Total Names	368	341	$273,530	$245,396
Total Number Amounts			260	231
Average amount			$1,052	$1,062

I would hope and pray that we will all reconsider our pledge commitment to Saint Barnabas for 2008.

Prayer Shawl Ministry News and Notes

The Prayer Shawl Ministry meets the third Monday of the month in the Parish House at 7 p.m. Our ministry is open to everyone, so we invite you to join us and bring a friend and introduce them to St. Barnabas and one of the many ministries we have here. We are also looking for donations of knitting needles. If you find some during yard sales or have extras please donate them to the Prayer Shawl Ministry (new or used is fine).

We are also in the planning stage for a Prayer Shawl Gathering at St. Barnabas in January 2009. This will be open to the public and we will invite local churches to share our ministry. Our hope is, as we share our ministry we can inspire others and other churches will share their ministry and stories with us. There will be more to come. If you can not join us at our monthly gathering, but would like more info, please contact Debbie Gentile via the church office. Would anyone be interested in morning Prayer Shawl group?

Transition: A Faith Journey

Exploring and experimenting with our identity

From the senior warden

Our journey on the Transition Road is entering the seventh month—which means our faith adventure together is already a third of the way to completion. This is a good time to pause and consider how far we have come. In addition to celebrating the two most joyous seasons of our church calendar, we have been immersed in the transition process.

The Search Committee completed the parish profile and sent it to New York to be officially entered in the Clergy Deployment Office. On April 27, members of the Search Committee celebrated this milestone with parishioners at a coffee hour. We expect to receive a substantial number of resumes and will begin to match our profile, our goals as a faith community with the skills, and dreams of candidates for rector of Saint Barnabas. Now is the time to say the Transition Prayer as a part of your daily devotions. Remember we are on a spiritual journey, an individual and collective faith walk unique to the transition process. Transition is about discernment, which means faith and prayer and trust. It is also about patience, because this journey cannot be rushed.

Transition is a time for us to continue to implement our Strategic Plan: We have successfully occupied the ground floor, making best use of all our facilities in the Parish Hall. We have reconfigured our administrative structure and are already reaping the benefits of the expanded directory and of streamlining our business practices. We have expanded Christian formation with additional adult learning opportunities, including Sunday School and classes on Wednesday morning and evening. And we have reinstated the Sunday morning coffee hour.

At the same time, we are exploring some previously unknown territories, often prompted by “why don’t we try this?” Because here is a essential piece of the transition journey: We are exploring and experimenting with our identify as a faith community. Now is the time to ask, “Will this work?” When we as a parish say, “We want a priest who will lead us to...,” “is that really what we want? Discernment, prayer and an occasional “why don’t we try this” will help us answer that question.

For example, we have changed the worship schedule because we as a parish want family worship, services beginning earlier than 11 a.m., coffee hour and more opportunities for the parish community to be together. With the return of the summer season and the Saturday evening service, it will be time to evaluate the success of this plan.

“O God, you know us better than we know ourselves. Guide us in our search for a new rector. Empower each of us to use our unique ministries, to share openly and honestly our thoughts, to respect the opinions of others, and to encourage humility, patience and joy. Instill in us a vision of the Church’s family; that guided by your Holy Spirit we will be united in love and joyfully accomplish this mission, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.”

—Joyce Harrington

From the Search Committee

By the time you are reading this the Search Committee will have already submitted the necessary documents to the National Church so that we can receive the applications of priests who are interested in our parish. This next phase of our search includes reviewing resumes, discussing the credentials of candidates, and planning interviews. As you can imagine, we will be very busy over the summer. Our consultant tells us that we are right on schedule. We continue to meet frequently, but will be changing our times to evenings starting in May.

We were sorry to receive a resignation from Chance Reichel, whose business is very demanding and calls him out of town a lot. We understand but we will miss his contributions and insights.

If you were unable to attend the April 27 update meeting, please know that we on the committee welcome your input and questions. Call or e-mail us at search@stbarnabasfalmouth.org.

Episcopal Church Women

The E.C.W. will hold their next luncheon meeting on Tues., May 27th at noon in the Parish House. Our guest presenter will be Fluffy Winner, a member of the Falmouth Garden Club. Fluffy will be creating some beautiful fresh flower arrangements for us, which will go home with several lucky women. Fluffy has won many awards for her arrangements. She is a "must see!" A sandwich luncheon will be offered by the E.C.W. Executive Board. We welcome all St. Barnabas women to join us for this important time of fellowship and fun.

A New Idea: We are scheduling a crafts workshop every Thursday night from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in the Conference Room. We will be working on simple crafts which will be sold at our December 8 Christmas Fair. We will have materials and some ideas available. However, we really will welcome any new ideas that you may have to share. Call Cyndy Ogden with any questions or ideas. You don't have to be super crafty to join us; just come and we'll find something easy for you to do to help!!

Another New Concept: We are going to be setting up some teams of people who would be willing to help out with special occasion small receptions, particularly for funerals at the church. If this is something that you feel interested in, please give your name to, either Cyndy Ogden or Doris Weeks.

We welcome the assistance of both men and women. We hope to get enough people so that we can set up teams on a monthly basis and lessen the workload of just a few helping hands. Won't you consider this form of ministry?

ECW needs your help for Strawberry Festival on June 21

After a long winter and before we've planted our gardens, the Episcopal Church Women are talking about the Strawberry Festival. This event brings together more people from our church family than anything else we do (except maybe Christmas and Easter services).

The Strawberry Festival is a day filled with fun, food and festivities of all kinds. The food is chicken, BBQ ribs, chowder, hot dogs, lobster rolls, watermelon and, of course, our famous strawberry shortcakes with fresh whipped cream. Then we have our traditional Jewelry Table, Book Table, Plants, Baked Goods, Elegant Elephant table, Strawberry Jam Table and lots of games and face painting for the children. We welcome aboard Randolph James, who organizes the musical events to be held inside and outside of the church.

We are open to any and all suggestions to make this event bigger and better and we welcome your call to Doris Weeks or Greg Strohm with your ideas. A list of all chairmen will be put in the weekly Sunday Bulletins; please call one of the table chairs to offer you services.

Most of all this event is a time to come together and share God's love with the community around us. And we are reminded of that purpose when the banner is hung in church that says: "Strawberry Festival—to the glory of God"!

Help with jam making: On Friday, June 6, Ingrid Frank and her Holy Hullers will be hulling the berries and setting up the kitchen in the hall at 6:30 p.m. On Saturday morning, June 7 at 8:30 a.m., they will make the jam. Ingrid is desperately in need of help, experienced or not! It is hard work, but a lot of fun to do. If you are able to help, call Ingrid

Environmental Committee

Tips on saving the planet

Lighting plays a fundamental role in our lives. We use lights to illuminate our daily activities and to create a safe, comfortable environment. Most households use incandescent bulbs for lighting. They are readily available and inexpensive. However, incandescent bulbs are inefficient light sources, converting 90 percent of electricity directly to heat and only about 10 percent to visible light.

In a typical American household, lighting sources consume a lot of electricity—nearly 2,000 kilowatt-hours per year, or 15 percent of the household's electricity consumption. If electricity is produced by burning coal (as is half of the electricity in the United States), each kilowatt-hour releases over two pounds (nearly 1 kilo) of carbon dioxide (CO₂). The buildup of CO₂ and other greenhouse gases in the atmosphere is contributing to global climate change, which is predicted to result in more frequent and severe storms and droughts, the rapid spread of infectious diseases, rising sea levels, and other adverse effects.

What you can do to cut lighting costs and reduce carbon emissions:

- Turn off all lights when you're not using them.
- The next time one of your often-used light bulbs goes out, replace it with a compact fluorescent.
- Replace all of your often-used incandescent bulbs with compact fluorescents.
- Consider reducing your lighting energy use in areas of your home that receive plenty of natural light.
- For tasks where you need more concentrated light, rely on localized lamps rather than room lighting.
- Encourage your friends and family to do the same.
